

Where to Start

Just bordering the Clairfields neighbourhood at Arkell Road and Gordon Street in Guelph, you'll find The 'Shed Market. A small retail location doing big business. Business that includes catering, take-out, prepared foods, RTE, deli counter, fresh meat case...the list goes on.

Their name (The 'Shed) is derived from the concept of a foodshed. A foodshed encompasses how food flows from the farms and producers to the place where it is purchased. It includes the route these products travel, the markets they pass through, and finally ends up on dinner tables.

"We are foodshed fed! Our philosophy in business, as in life, is based on a strong sense of community. We work and play here. Dine, shop and are entertained here. We volunteer, teach, and help bring people together. The 'Shed Market is an extension of our lives – established to support our community and offer the best products and services we possibly can," says partner Jim Loat.

"We're fortunate to have some of the best farmers and producers in the country, and we're proud to bring their food to your table. We strive to make these products accessible and affordable, and maybe change the way you eat!"

Known for their famous pulled pork, consumers are also giving 5-stars for the wings, chicken pot pies, meatballs, and smoked mac and cheese, to name a few. It appears that the biggest dilemma with shopping at The 'Shed is choosing where to start.

Reviews:
"As a first time visitor, I will definitely be a returning customer!! The chicken wings I enjoyed tonight are the best I have ever tasted!! Nice, friendly atmosphere as well!!" ~ Kelly M.

"The most delicious sandwich ever and the bacon is amazing. Can't wait to try more!!" ~ Lisa S.

"We had their chicken pot pies tonight. Amazing! Big hunks of white meat, great puff pastry and carefully spiced. Art really!" ~ Dante W.
